

Trump's Legacy

by Earl P. Holt III

So-called "feminists" in the Ladies' Auxiliary of Marxism and their "Democrat" allies used to point to what they claimed was a "gender gap" between the two major political parties. This gender gap supposedly consisted of the roughly 55% support "Democrats" usually received from American women. Of course, conveniently ignored when reciting this fact was that American males supported the Republican Party with even greater majorities.

Apparently, due largely to the influence of Donald Trump, a host of bright and fearless young women have joined the conservative movement and many are real fighters. You can see several of them on One America News Network (OANN,) any time of day. There are also several on Fox News and NewsMax, but they are given less prominence.

Unfortunately, bright and steely Liz Wheeler has left OANN, but Natalie Harp and Christina Bobb are still there and absolutely fearless. Greta Wall is equally impressive and equally courageous. Chanelle Rion is doing some of the best investigative reporting this country has seen in 50 years, and should receive a Pulitzer, if those weren't reserved for lying communists and other traitorous members of the New Communist Party of the USA (NCPUSA.)

You can also see Trump's influence among certain high-profile GOP and conservative women in elective office, many of whom have more "brass" (I'm trying to avoid crudity here) than most of their male colleagues. I'm referring specifically to Marjorie Taylor Green (R-GA-14) in the House, Senator Marsha Blackburn (R-TN,) and Governor Kristi Noem of South Dakota.

Trump also surrounded himself with bright young women who were by no means "tokens." These included White House Press Secretary Kayleigh McEnany, her predecessor Sarah Huckabee Sanders, Counselor to the President Kellyanne Conway, and Director of Communications Alyssa Farah, among dozens of others.

Another factor contributing to this "realignment" involving young women was the election of Barack Hussein Obama. It was obvious even to those with average intellect that the life-history this guy volunteered was entirely fabricated, whether the Jews' Media were interested in pursuing that story or not. As America's first communist and Moslem president, it was patently clear Obama was not interested in making America stronger, he was interested in implementing a Marxist agenda to subvert us economically and militarily. Bright women recognized this.

Another reason many young women are swelling the ranks of the conservative movement is the obvious fact that the so-called NCPUSA has become so corrupt and radically Marxist, women are disgusted by it. This includes those who are Pro-Life, those who support our police and our military, those horrified by NCPUSA voter fraud, those concerned about open borders, and those outraged at the malignant and poisonous curricula offered in the public schools. Such women are definitely not welcomed in the NCPUSA.

Perceptive young women increasingly recognize that the NCPUSA does not have their interests at heart, despite endless lip-service to the contrary. For example, the left's obsession with "gender identity" has created a situation where female athletes -- who may have trained their entire lives -- have been forced aside in athletic competitions by opponents who are biologically male but competing as "females." This is an inevitable consequence of the ridiculous claim by the misogynistic Ladies' Auxiliary of Marxism that "gender is a false construct."

Bright and perceptive young women may also have recognized that the founders and leaders of the feminist movement are inevitably bitter, angry, lonely and delusional. Their ranks also include an awful lot of lesbians among them, as well as a great many crazed communists.

However, the primary factor motivating these young women to embrace the conservative movement was probably Donald Trump's style of leadership. In the film Braveheart, the William Wallace character (played by Mel Gibson) informs Robert the Bruce that "men don't follow titles, they follow courage." The contrast in leadership between Donald Trump on the one hand -- and the Bush Family, Obama or hapless Joe Biden on the other -- could not be more obvious.

Obama was a traitor to America, who did everything he could to empower our enemies, particularly with the "Iran Deal" and his "Rules of Engagement" that handcuffed our combat forces in Afghanistan and made them sitting ducks for the Taliban and other Islamic terrorists. His sole concern was his party's quest for endless power and America's transition to socialism.

Meanwhile, honest and intelligent people had no difficulty recognizing that Donald Trump loves this country, and was willing to sacrifice a great deal in order prevent the enemies of freedom and democracy from subverting and destroying it. Even if he does not run for president in 2024, that will be his legacy for many years to come.
