

Last Refuge of a Race-Hustler

Former Miami Dolphin Head Coach Brian Flores is suing the Nigro Football League (NFL) for race discrimination because no other team appears interested in hiring him as a head coach. He must see the NFL as a "mark," and got that idea from that race-hustling fraud, Colin Kaepernick.

Flores claims the NFL is racist because the vast majority of its head coaching positions are filled by whites. It doesn't appear to bother him that blacks comprise better than 90% of the NFL's "speed positions," (i.e.,) the highly-paid ends, backs, cornerbacks and safeties. To Flores and other race-hustlers, somehow it's NOT race discrimination when blacks dominate a profession, but it IS when they don't. Go figure!

He further alleges his interview with the New York Giant's was a "sham," because they exploited him as a token black applicant for their vacant head coaching job. He claims they feigned seriously considering him in order to comply with the "Rooney Rule," imposed on the NFL by a former Commissioner: it requires that teams interview a "diverse range" of applicants for each coaching position.

Flores fails to recognize that his characterization of his interview with the Giants is an INEVITABLE consequence of "affirmative-action" and race quotas. They force organizations wishing to hire the most qualified candidate to engage in the charade of appearing to seriously consider less desirable minority applicants in order to avoid legal consequences. Does Flores think that the diversity clause in the Rooney Rule requires the Giants to interview "transgenders" and women, as well?

Flores has a losing career record of 24 wins and 25 losses in the NFL, which isn't bad for NFL head coaches, since only half can have winning records. The simple truth is that he has probably made some high profile mental errors in his coaching career that inevitably hurt his team. I'm just guessing, because I refuse to watch any NFL games -- or even follow the NFL -- until Colin Kaepernick refunds all those millions to Nike they foolishly gave him, and sings the National Anthem before a Super Bowl.

What this controversy really illustrates is that blacks and whites are very different and have very different "skill-sets." Whites tend to be more cerebral -- based on their demonstrably higher IQs -- while blacks dominate professional sports where speed, reflexes and jumping ability are a tremendous advantage.

For whites to dominate NFL head coaching positions is no more evidence of race discrimination than the predominance of blacks at the highly-paid speed positions in football. Or, for that matter, black dominance of the Nigro Basketball Association.
