

Gender Dystopia

by Earl P. Holt III

For 6,000 years of recorded history, no civilization ever experienced difficulty distinguishing between men and women. The noted British legal scholar and jurist, William Blackstone, is often credited with the facetious remark that Britain's Parliament can do anything except make a woman a man. Yet, modern "feminism" has nearly succeeded in the reverse, and has done so with nothing more than its twisted and delusional propaganda.

Feminists -- The Ladies' Auxiliary of Marxism -- have disseminated the laughable and delusional notion that "gender is a false construct." Yet, that claim never seems to apply when feminists are yammering for gender quotas or other advantages and privileges for women. However, it's created a great deal of confusion and cognitive dissonance among those stupid enough to believe it.

It was this neurotic and delusional rejection of the very concept of "gender" by feminists that precipitated the recent controversy involving biological males competing as "transgenders" against biological females in athletic competitions. In the fevered minds of feminists, if gender distinctions are false, then there's no reason to separate athletic competitions between men and women, or retain those distinctions anywhere else. The highly-publicized career of Lia Thomas serves as a perfect illustration.

For three years, Lia Thomas competed on the University of Pennsylvania's Men's Swim Team, and was ranked 554th in the world at the 200-Meter Freestyle. His Senior Year, he became a transgender and joined the Women's Swim Team at Penn. He recently won the NCAA Championship in the Women's 500-Meter Freestyle event because the cowards who govern the NCAA don't have the guts to resist the queer and pervert lobby.

Queer or transgendered circus freaks have always been perfectly free to compete against men rather than women. Men and women are physiologically different, even if feminists are incapable of recognizing this fact. To sane individuals, whose minds are not contaminated by Marxist ideology, this would serve as a sufficient explanation for why men rarely compete against women in athletic competitions anymore than they compete against children.

Here's another, equally valuable illustration: In 2003, Annika Sorenstam -- the greatest woman golfer ever to pick up a club -- entered a men's Professional Golf Association (PGA) tour event at The Colonial in Fort Worth, Texas. For at least a decade, Sorenstam had dominated the Women's PGA tour, much like Jack Nicklaus or Tiger Woods dominated the men's tour at various times.

At The Colonial, Sorenstam posted what for most amateur golfers would be quite respectable scores of 71 and 76, but finished 96th out of 107 male professionals who entered the tournament. She did manage to better the scores of 11 men, although she failed to make the Friday "cut" that would have allowed her to play Saturday and Sunday and receive a payday.

It doesn't appear that she was trying to make a statement about women or gender, as many feminists tediously and routinely attempt to do. After tearing up the women's tour, it seems that she was merely curious to see how she would fare against men in competition. Doubtless, she learned that the courses the men play are far longer and more difficult, and the pin-placements and speed of the greens are usually made much more difficult than those on the women's tour.

This is reminiscent of the time that the championship 2017 Women's World Cup soccer team competed against a Dallas team consisting of boys under 15 years of age in order to prepare for an upcoming match against Russia. The boy's team beat them 5 to 2, although the talented 2017 U.S. Women's World Cup team went on to win its coveted World Cup championship that year.

It's really a very simple task to objectively determine gender for the purposes of athletic competitions. Biological males have an "X" and a "Y" chromosome in their cell nuclei, while women have two "X" chromosomes in theirs. Although Biden nominees to the Supreme Court don't seem to know this, every high school biology student does.

Allowing transgendered males to compete at any level against biological females in athletic competitions merely exposes the cowardice and lack of principle found among the quislings who permit such unfair competitions.

Hopefully, young women will recognize that the seeds of this inequity were sown by the very "feminists" who falsely claim to be their advocates.
