

Terrible Advice

by Earl P. Holt III

The Yankee Government has once again begun promoting its flu vaccines in cable TV ads. The last three years have taught me NEVER to take the Yankee Government's advice when it comes to decisions involving health or medical care, just as:

I don't need any recipes from Jeffrey Dahmer;

I wouldn't assign Alejandro Mayorkas to guard an outhouse;

I wouldn't appoint Ted Bundy to proctor a women's dorm;

I wouldn't ask Bernie Madoff to invest my money;

I wouldn't appoint Mark Zuckerberg to investigate censorship;

I wouldn't ask Hillary Clinton about ethical constraints;

I wouldn't ask Adam Schiff about the Ninth Commandment;

I wouldn't take medical advice from Anthony Fauci;

I wouldn't ask Janet Yellin about inflation;

I wouldn't let Hunter Biden within 100 yards of my cat;

I wouldn't ask Joe Biden about treason;

I wouldn't ask ANY "Democrat" about governing;

I wouldn't ask Jeffrey Epstein if he knew any "sporty" girls;

I wouldn't hire Norman Bates to fix my shower.
