

E Pluribus, Unum

by Earl P. Holt III

The other night I fell asleep watching TV and was awakened in the early morning hours by an ad for Mercy Ships, which bills itself as an international, Christian humanitarian organization. It donates enormous quantities of volunteered time and resources to effectuate miraculous medical cures in Third World countries.

As I watched, it hit me that EVERY one of the hospital ship's personnel in that ad appeared to be white Americans. There didn't appear to be any Chinese, Russians, Iranians, or blacks doing this. And despite endless lip service given to "universal brotherhood," there sure as hell weren't any members of BLM or Antifa participating in these humanitarian activities.

And that's the way it's always been: whenever there's a natural disaster anywhere in the world, it's usually white and Christian Americans who are the first to assist those in need. Other nations may contribute to a given cause, but Americans almost always bear 90% of the financial burden and do most of the heavy-lifting. No amount of lies by commies or black race-hustlers will change this fact.

Our “Good Samaritan” impulse was particularly evident during the Marshall Plan following World War II. After reluctantly being dragged into the war and then defeating Germany and Japan, we REBUILT those nations that tried to destroy us for four years. What society but America would have done such a thing? If given the chance, the Soviets would have plundered both Axis powers, just as they immediately plundered Eastern Europe following the war.

America sacrificed 400,000 of its bravest and most selfless citizens in that war, with an estimated financial expenditure of about $8 Trillion in inflation-adjusted dollars. In a uniquely American gesture of good will, the only thing we ever asked of those nations we rescued were small plots of ground in which to bury those brave American warriors who would never return home.

American Cemetery at Normandy

That's the America I know and have always known. Occasionally, our humanitarian impulses have led us down the primrose path, but they were usually well-intentioned. For example, our mission in Afghanistan regressed into an insane attempt to install pluralistic and democratic institutions in a primitive, 13th Century theocracy comprised of inbred goat-herders. There, it was our caliber of leadership that was deficient, not America's character.

In any event, there never has been and never will be another nation as generous, forgiving and altruistic as the United States of America. Our enemies — both foreign and domestic — aren't worthy to scrub our latrines.
