

Is This Feasible ?

Once Donald Trump is reelected and staffs his Justice Department with honorable people, his Solicitor General might consider granting restitution to the many decent and innocent citizens who were clearly wronged by Attorney General Merrick Garland's weaponizing of Biden's In-Justice Department.

I'm referring to the many victims of the unconstitutional weaponization of the FBI and DOJ through so-called "lawfare," and who were wrongly searched or surveilled, or falsely indicted and imprisoned using fabricated charges brought by corrupt DOJ and FBI officials.

This would apply to people like General Michael Flynn, Rudi Giuliani, Carter Page, George Papadopoulos, Peter Navarro, John East, Steve Bannon, Sidney Powell, Jeffrey Clark, Lin Wood, all the peaceful January 6th protestors, and government "Whistle-blowers" who were punished for telling the truth. It would also apply to Paulette Harlow, the 75 year-old woman who was sentenced to prison for PRAYING at an abortion clinic.

Paulette Harlow

Ordinarily, plaintiffs have little success with civil lawsuits brought against the federal government. Even if a complaint is legitimate, an endless team of government lawyers and "Democrat" appointed judges often delay or "continue" such a case until evidence eventually disappears, the plaintiff or witnesses die, or legal billings become so onerous the plaintiff must drop his case.

What if Plaintiffs with legitimate claims were permitted to sue the federal government, but before a "Democrat" appointed federal judge could dismiss the case, the DOJ agreed to a settlement out-of-court? At the very least, these individuals should receive restitution for their legal expenses.

If that approach isn't workable, an Act of Congress may be required.

Oliver Wendell Gladstone,
Blackwater, U.K.