

Much Deeper than Politics

by Earl P. Holt III

At what point does it become clinical insanity when people reject clear and obvious reality and substitute fantasy and delusion? Throughout the West, there are political and demographic groups whose members exhibit precisely this behavior. Some do so for political advantage, but others seem absolutely sincere when advancing ideas that normal and sane people easily recognize to be absurd or delusional.

Psychiatrist Carl Jung once observed: "Everywhere in the West there are subversive minorities, who -- sheltered by our humanitarianism and our sense of justice -- hold the incendiary torches ready, with nothing to stop the spread of their ideas except the critical reason of a single, fairly intelligent, mentally stable stratum of the population."

Carl Gustav Jung

The Psychiatric and Psycho-Analytic professions currently recognize several forms of a condition they call a "delusional psychosis." One variety is referred to as Delusional Psychosis with Erotic Manifestations, evident in that crazy woman in the film Play Misty for Me, who made the life of Clint Eastwood's on-screen character a living nightmare. (In real life, other scorned lovers made his life equally miserable.) More recently, this was the obvious diagnosis of that woman who persisted in breaking into David Letterman's residence dozens of times -- despite restraining orders against her and multiple arrests -- because she was convinced that "God wanted us to be together."

Letterman Stalker

Another variety is referred to as a Delusional Psychosis with Persecutory Manifestations, earlier referred to as a Paranoid Psychosis, and an easy diagnosis among those who suffer from this condition. There is also Delusional Psychosis with Grandiose Manifestations, wherein sufferers believe they harbor the secret to world peace or a cure for cancer, which they would willingly share if only given the opportunity. Also, there is a Delusional Psychosis with Somatic Manifestations, in which patients become convinced they have an illusory physical condition that the medical profession can never seem to find. (This sounds like extreme Hypochondria.) Finally, there is also Delusional Psychosis with Jealous Manifestations, where people become convinced their spouse or lover is unfaithful, even when there's no reason to believe such a thing.

In light of the reaction of "Democrats" and other Marxist ideologues to Donald Trump's second landslide victory on November 5th of 2024, I wish to propose another variation on this condition, namely Delusional Psychosis with Ideological Manifestations (DPIM.) This is a condition shared by people who have remained so committed to Marxist ideology and for so many years, that its dogmas eventually become hard-wired in their brains. Then, when their utopian dreams are crushed, it ultimately manifests in bizarre behaviors and psychotic delusions that defy reality.

Social Psychologists recognize a similar phenomenon they call "cognitive dissonance." This term was originally used to describe the reaction of those who, with the utmost sincerity, predicted the world would end on a particular date, but no such event occurred. (Unfortunately, the term was never applied to climate alarmists like Al Gore, Barry Commoner or Paul Ehrlich, who made similar predictions.) DPIM appears to be an extreme example of cognitive dissonance.

"Like the new sign? Comes with a 10 year warranty!"

One difference is that the subjects in cognitive dissonance studies usually responded to their failed predictions logically, such as by blaming miscalculations. In contrast, those with DPIM seem to exhibit behaviors devoid of logic or reason.

Examples are found among self-absorbed and self-important celebrities and entertainers like Joy Behar of "The View," who expressed fear that Donald Trump might "come after them" and attempt to destroy them if he were elected president. Likewise, Joy Reid on MS-NBC warned that Trump planned to deport "all brown people." While many of these empty-headed and venomous individuals lied about Trump on an hourly basis, such as Joy Behar's fellow witches on "The View," it's sheer delusion on their part to assume that Trump would bother to reach so low as to swat such insignificant pests. Trump wouldn't waste the time because he'll be too busy MAKING AMERICA GREAT AGAIN.

At several once-prestigious universities -- such as Harvard, Columbia, and Penn -- Trump's landslide prompted several professors to declare a time for "grieving" by cancelling their classes or granting excused absences from class. Other instructors served snacks and volunteered their offices as a "space to process the election." At less pretentious schools, "therapy animals" were made available, cookies and milk were served, and crayons were provided for comforting the "election angst" of students. This is how leftist snowflakes -- who aspire to lead this nation -- regress back to childhood when things don't go their way, and are then coddled and pampered by dolts in authority.

A similar demographic are the confused "feminists" of the Lady's Auxiliary of Marxism. Some enterprising individuals within this coven proposed that women refuse to have sex with men in order to punish them for their majority support of Donald Trump. (Ironically, most are so unappealing it wouldn't create many hardships.) Other fevered feminists have shaved their heads in protest of the 2024 election, not realizing this was originally a PUNISHMENT imposed by the French Resistance on French women who collaborated with (or "romanced") Germany's Wehrmacht invaders during World War II.

French Women Who "Collaborated" with NAZIs

Since 2016, a number of high-profile dilettantes found in Hollywood and other modern Babylons have vowed to leave America and move to other nations if Trump were elected president. Few have ever made good on such a promise, thereby exposing themselves to be childish and impulsive liars who merely seek attention. However, at least two are doing so in 2024, by pulling up roots and abandoning friends and allies to the cruelty of a Trump-led effort to Make America Great Again. One in particular was that lesbian leftist, Ellen Degenerate, who is moving to the United Kingdom with her wife.

Many "Democrats" and other Marxists have turned their venom on Trump voters for their electoral disappointments, blaming their losses on what these misanthropes allege to be the racism, misogyny, stupidity, xenophobia, and "disinformation" found among Trump voters. They blame everything but their party's twisted priorities and Marxist ideology. Their finger-pointing proves that none are really adults, and each is simply doing what children always do by blaming anyone else for their own failings.

For four years or longer, these same folks alleged that boys can menstruate, men can become pregnant, traditional Catholics and parents who criticize local school boards are "domestic terrorists," and male transgenders should be permitted to share restrooms and locker rooms with girls and women, while competing against them in athletic competitions. They also promised us that the border is "secure," diversity is our strength, Hamas is a victim of Israel, and Joe Biden is "at the top of his game." Likewise, they claimed that inflation is transitory, Trump is a "threat to democracy," China is a loyal trading partner, and Hunter Biden's laptop computer was "Russian disinformation."

If that doesn't constitute a Delusional Psychosis with Ideological Manifestations, I'd sure as hell like to know what would...
